Auspicious Emblem For The Year Of The Metal Ox

The Mandarin word for “orange”, cheng, is pronounced the same as that in cheng gong, the Mandarin word for “success”. The orange is a symbol of plentiful rewards to be reaped in the year, sincerity and smooth progress, with its leaf representing vitality. The bull horns represent the energy to charge forward and overcome barriers, thus allowing you to build more connections and boosting career and fortune. 2021 ANALYSIS

People born in the year of the Ox are in clash with the Grand Duke and have no support from lucky stars this year. In addition, the plethora of unlucky stars will band together to challenge your mental state. Specifically, the Separation and Desolate stars can act together to slowly chip away self-confidence, causing you to doubt your own abilities. However, with the help of the Star of Arts, you can be extremely innovative. Several lightbulb moments will appear to give you great ideas at timely moments. But it is your fear of failure that you need to overcome, as fear will only paralyze you to passivity. Use this time to upgrade your skills, so you can take full advantage of your improving luck in the coming years. Consider praying at your place of worship for a smooth and peaceful year.

2021 ANALYSIS

With the help of the lucky stars, you will be able to organise both work and life in an orderly manner, bringing about happiness and wealth luck. This year, it is favourable for you to develop your career abroad. Should an opportunity come by, do not hesitate for too long lest you miss out on it. When you feel like you have encountered a bottleneck, consider venturing abroad, as it could bring unexpected results. However, with the unlucky star, there are bound to be uncertainties and troubles within the family. You need to be mentally prepared for it.
